How Jesus Saves

#26214

So I was a drug addict for many years. I got to the stage where I didn't want to live and I really didn't care about my life so I decided it was time to do something about it. I then managed to get a place at rehab. It's a Christian rehab so it focuses on the bible. I never really had any knowledge of the bible or Jesus before this. I had always believed in something, but I didn't know what. Anyway I managed to get myself clean for 4 months. Then I decided to leave rehab and thought as I always did I'm clean, I feel and look a lot better, I can do this on my own now.

How wrong I was.

Anyway, three months later I was back depressed, using drugs and desperate. I got brought to my knees in desperation, I prayed to Jesus for help and asked him to sort my life out because I couldn't do it. I also asked what do I need to do? Whatever it was, I would do it.

Two days later I was arrested at my home. Just as I got arrested, my mother showed up at my house saying that the rehabilitation centre was on the phone and I had a place there the following day. I was trying my hardest to stop the police from taking me saying look I'm going to rehab tomorrow I can't miss that. Really I was wanting to go get drugs. They still arrested me, kept me in the cells overnight and I had court the next day. After I had done that my mum was at the court and took me straight to rehab.

I know this was my prayer being answered and Jesus' plan for me. If I didn't get arrested, I would have gone and used drugs and not gone to rehab. Because of how it all worked out, I just know it was Jesus answering my prayer.

I've now been clean just short of a year. My faith is stronger than ever, I found myself again and Jesus has given me the tools to help me deal with the day to day problems that we all face. I now look forward to my future and the plans Jesus has for me. I thank him everyday. The things that he is doing in my life right now are nothing short of a miracle. Praise the lord. I hope this inspires anyone who is reading this.

Jesus carrying me through a miscarriage

#26243

I had been trying for a baby for some years, had gone through a lot of heartache and illness, but eventually found myself pregnant. Yet, almost immediately, I was rushed into hospital threatening to miscarry. While I was in hospital, waiting for the result of tests, I was so distraught that I could pray no further than "HELP".

In the middle of the night I woke up feeling a presence next to my bed, then sensing it was Jesus coming right inside me and filling me with overwhelming peace and joy. At that moment I knew that the baby had gone, but it didn't matter. I just wanted to burst out singing 'Praise my soul, the king of heaven, to his feet thy tribute bring. Ransomed, healed, restored, forgiven, who like me his praise should sing?'

That was the answer to my prayer: what really mattered was that I had been ransomed, healed, restored and forgiven. There would be another chance to have a baby.

Next morning the nurse came in just to say, 'Your tests have been negative. So you'll be going to theatre.'

As I lay on the operating table, the surgeon read through my notes and said, 'Poor thing, after all that!' and I wanted to shout out, 'No, I'm the luckiest person in the world, I have been ransomed, healed, restored and forgiven!'

I was eventually given two healthy children, but also had another two miscarriages.

After major surgery for suspected cancer my daughter was given the all clear

#26304

After months of feeling ill and having tests my daughter was told she needed major surgery for suspected cancer. She has children and a partner and step children. When she was first diagnosed, I prayed that she would be healed and God said very clearly to me: she will be well and she will feel well. I shared this with her and from that moment I was peaceful and believed that she would be well and that she would feel well.

On the day of the operation the Lord woke me with the following words clearly spoken in my head: I have appointed an excellent team to repair, restore and resolve. It transpired that the hospital department is a centre of excellence for this type of surgery and the top surgeon was doing the operation. The operation was successful and the surgeon said there were no surprises. I wept tears of relief that she had come through the operation and it had been successful.

We waited for the histology results and on the morning of the results, when I was reading my bible, the verse of the day at the end was from 2 Kings 20:5; the Lord said I have heard your prayer and I have seen your tears, I will heal you. When she received the histology results later that day she was told by the surgeon that what they found was benign and no further treatment was required. She needed 3-6 months recovery and 5 years monitoring.

She is getting stronger by the day and I believe that the operation resolved the problem and she is being repaired and restored and she will be well and feel well.

Thank you Lord Jesus for healing my daughter. I give you all the glory.

Restoration of marriage

#26305

My husband and I are two people who wholeheartedly love Jesus. When we got married it seemed like a fairytale. A few months later, we were separated. He had moved out. Initially I thought that he would return home soon and we would work it out. I began to pray, and seek the Lord with a depth that I never had before. Days turned into weeks and weeks turned into months. I was quite devastated by the disappointment and hurt that came with our separation.

My husband was determined that he did not want to reunite. We only spoke three times during our separation, and he even filed for divorce. When the divorce papers came, I had to answer back to the court. I continued to pray, and believe, but most of all, I drew closer to the Lord than I had ever been.

I plastered my wall with promises from scripture, and prayed them everyday. I allowed Jesus to become Lord, and not just savior to me. I had a select few family and friends who were praying and believing with me that my marriage would be restored. It truly seemed impossible.

My husband would not speak with me, and the rejection was very painful. One day, months into our separation, he called me. He was determined that I sign the divorce papers. I told him that I could not stop a judge from granting a divorce, but I would never sign the divorce papers. I was going to honor my covenant to him no matter what. The conversation turned into a heated argument. That night, I told a friend that I didn't think this was going to turn around the way I had hoped. It looked more impossible than it had in the last several months. After praying, and crying, I finally went to sleep that night.

In the morning I received a phone call from my husband. It was the phone call that reunited us as husband and wife, for good.

We have now been married for years. God restored both of us individually and together as a couple. Our marriage is a testimony of the goodness of God, even when it looks impossible. Never give up hope, and cling to the promises of God!

A family restored from the other side of the world...

#24609

My whole family was broken. I'd lost contact with my son, daughter and grandchildren as they'd gone to live in Australia. After years of tears, heartache and prayers God answered my prayers and has healed the hurts and brought us back together as a family. After travelling out to Australia and seeing my family I have never felt so loved in my life. I spend my days thanking God for what he has done to restore my family. He loves me, how wonderfully amazing that is.
